Guiding Questions for Planning, Revising, and Refining a Case Study

1.	What is this a case study of?
2.	Why should your case study matter to other scholars?
3.	What is the context of your case study (e.g., discipline, institution, nation)?
4.	From whose perspective is the case study written? Who was involved in the practice?
5.	What did your practice look like?

From Writing about Learning and Teaching in Higher Education: Creating and Contributing to Scholarly Conversations across a Range of Genres by Healey, Matthews, and Cook-Sather. Elon University Center for Engaged Learning, 2020. https://doi.org/10.36284/celelon.oa3.

6.	How did you collect evidence about impacts of your practice?
7.	What were the outcomes arising from the practice described in your case study?
8.	How do you handle and present unexpected findings?
9.	What lessons have you learned, and what will you do differently as a result?
10.	What lessons have you learned, and what will you do differently as a result?
	about Learning and Teaching in Higher Education: Creating and Contributing to Scholarly Conversations acros. nres by Healey, Matthews, and Cook-Sather. Elon University Center for Engaged Learning, 2020.

https://doi.org/10.36284/celelon.oa3.